Communications: Save And Options

Throughout eTapestry, the option to save your work displays with an option to navigate to another area in the application when you select Save And.

With this release, when you return to a template in Communications, eTapestry remembers the option you previously selected. For example, when you create a classic mailing template, if you select to save and Create Document, the Create Document option will be selected in the Save And menu the next time you create or edit a classic mailing template.

Communications: Email Sender Support

When you create one-off documents, you can now enter the name and address of the person to whom replies should be sent. Previously, this option was only available when you generate mass email. By default, your user account information appears, but you can change this to your organization's information or another person in your organization. For more information, see Generate One-Off Documents.
